For respondents that thought information was hard to find on the microsities or ETF website, we presented a follow up question to determine what information they were unable to find.

What information was difficult to find, or you were unable to find?
(4 responses)

Other:

- “Rules for a termed employee and how long they can access funds”
- “ETF site it takes some navigation to get there; no link to admin manual from page, it's easier to google the search item and include ETF in the google search than it is to search the ETF site; no substantiation info on ETF site or links to optum site for this (is on the Optum site itself; would be nice to have a section on ETF page about concept, but then link to Optum page)”
- “Contact info, Mid-year enrollments in commuter accounts, unsubstantiated claims process, when FSA cards suspended due to unsub claims would be reinstated”

All “other” comments were left by survey takers who found information hard to find on the ETF website but did not have trouble with the microsities.

How often do you access the Optum Financial microsite for employers?

Customer Service

What problems, if any, have your employees had with Optum Financial?
(13 responses)

Other*:

- “difficulty submitting claims related to substantiation (people saying they submitted, being told to fax and then EE told no record of it)”
- “Beneficiary designation, excess contributions, no payment cards issued, contributions held due to no payment cards issued for unknown reason, HSA's cancelled due to issue with mail being returned in error, HSA's cancelled due to Optum system issue, annual elections being overwritten”
- “Funding issues – resolved”
- “Unsubstantiated Claims Appeal Process”

**Three “other” comments were omitted as they were duplicative of answers captured in the graph above.*

For respondents that indicated employees had difficulty submitting claims, we showed a follow up question asking which accounts presented this difficulty.
