ETHICS AND FIDUCIARY DUTY

Who is a Fiduciary?

A fiduciary is one who holds assets in trust or in confidence for a beneficiary. A person is a fiduciary with respect to a pension plan to the extent they have discretionary authority to the plan and assets. The exercise of discretion and control or the authority to do so are the keys to making this determination. Trustees are clearly fiduciaries, but benefits administrators are, too. The courts have held that one who designs, recommends, and implements a pension plan is a fiduciary.

Board members represent all participants in the WRS, not just their particular association (e.g., teachers). Board membership includes the fiduciary responsibility of protecting the trust funds to help assure funding for the future retirement benefits of current active employees.

Fiduciary Duties

- Duty to collect contributions from employers and/or employees.
- The common law of trusts defines the scope of authority and responsibilities of trustees as all powers necessary and appropriate for the carrying out of the trusts' purposes, including acting to ensure that a plan receives all funds to which it is entitled so that those funds can be used on behalf of participants and beneficiaries. Fiduciaries are personally liable to make good to the pension plan any losses from breaching their fiduciary responsibility.
- Duty to pay benefits: the correct amount, on time, and to the right person.
- Duty to comply with plan documents.
- Most public employee pension "plan documents" are contained in statute so the duty to understand the laws is important.
- Duty to comply with laws and regulations (local, state, and federal).
- Duty to inform members.
- Duty to defray the expenses of administering the system in a reasonable manner.

- Duty of loyalty to trust fund participants.
- Duty not to use position for personal gain.
- Duty to act solely in the members' interest for the exclusive purpose of providing benefits to participants and their beneficiaries.
- Duty to act prudently.
- Duty to hire experts.

How Does One Become A Fiduciary?

- By accepting a position on a Board covered by a state statute naming fiduciaries
- By assuming certain responsibilities, even if not required by the statute
- By agreeing to fiduciary standards in a contract

Who Are Fiduciaries?

- All Board members (trustees) are fiduciaries
- Some advisors may be fiduciaries, some may not be fiduciaries
- Those who have discretion over benefits eligibility are fiduciaries
- Some internal ETF staff are fiduciaries, some are not
- The test is whether or not a staff person has discretion and control over the administration of the plan or management of the assets
- A person's fiduciary duty is limited to the scope of responsibility they assume

Guidance For Fiduciaries

- The Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 (ERISA) and its relevance to public retirement systems
- Federal and state laws
- Attorney General opinions
- Court decisions
- Advice of legal counsel
- The Boards of corporations and non-profit organizations are not the models to be followed.

Prudent Expert Standard

Trustees will be judged by those who serve in the same capacity as them and who act with the care, skill, prudence, and diligence under the circumstances then prevailing that a prudent person acting in a like capacity and familiar with such matters would use in the conduct of an enterprise of like character and with like aims.

Exercising Prudence

- If trustees are not experts, they are to carefully hire, monitor, and evaluate the experts they rely on
- Experts exist inside and outside the organization
- Questioning experts is not impolite
- Trustees must “do the right thing” while incurring only reasonable expenses
- What is the definition of “reasonable”?
- Public retirement systems may be challenged about expenses in the press, but usually not in the courts

Delegation and Interpretation of Prudence

- Delegation
 - Delegation of responsibility is allowed; abdication is not
 - Carefully select those working for you
 - Monitor them regularly
 - Trustees are protected if they act prudently in delegating duties
- Interpretation
 - Use current standards, not outdated ones
 - Consider what is going on nationwide
 - Focus on public retirement systems
 - Follow the very best practices

Prudence in Action

- In Benefits Administration
 - Accurately interpret the law and policies
 - Carefully determine benefits and distribution eligibility
 - Maintain confidentiality of certain information
 - Protect the tax-qualified status of the trust
- In Operations
 - Respect open meetings and open records laws
 - Disclose whatever personal information is required
 - Uphold the ethics policy
 - Respect your internal operations policies
 - Ensure labor laws and personnel policies are followed

How is Prudence Verified?

- Ask about legal compliance
- Review policy compliance and exceptions
- Invite and listen to concerns of staff, members, and other interested parties
- Study audit findings
- Seek out best practices of others

Loyalty

Fiduciaries are to act solely for the benefit of the beneficiaries.

This means
current and future beneficiaries.

* * * * *

When creating policies or making other decisions, the fiduciaries can “only wear one hat.”
The law is very strict about this.

Loyalty

- No fiduciary duty is owed to the appointing Board
- No fiduciary duty is owed to a sub-group of “constituents”
- Maintaining a good working relationship with them is wise; however, the fiduciary duty to the current and future beneficiaries of the Fund is paramount to all other duties or obligations

Loyalty to ETF

- Your job is not to “balance the interests” of the state or the taxpayers
- Your job is not to please everyone who wants something from the Fund
- Under trust law, you must act solely in the interest of the beneficiaries of the Fund
- The duty of loyalty requires that you collect all money owed to the Fund
- Collections of overpayments from beneficiaries are difficult

Conflicts of Interest

- Avoid self-dealing
- Avoid self-enrichment
- Personal financial gain from the Fund is prohibited
- Reputational enhancement by using your status with the Fund is to be avoided
- Courts are very strict on fiduciaries
- The “court of public opinion” is very strict as well
- Fiduciary standards have increased in complexity

Cofiduciary Liability

Cofiduciary liability means
“you are your brother’s keeper.”

If you know of a violation and do nothing about it, you are breaching your fiduciary duty.

Protection from Liability

- Protection
 - By relying on “experts” (not always)
 - By governmental immunity (maybe, for some actions)
 - By fiduciary insurance (to a limited extent)
- Avoidance
 - Orientation and continuing education
 - Thorough decision-making processes
 - Clear documentation of Board actions
 - Expert advice in certain areas - law, actuarial issues, audits, technology
 - Good governance and ongoing oversight activities

Conclusion

- Fiduciary standards are very high
- When times are tough, Boards are more closely scrutinized
- Careful, thorough, and scrupulous behavior is expected
- A good process is very important to a good outcome
- Your members and beneficiaries expect you to meet and maintain fiduciary standards
